Strategies in Action

Chapter Five
Chapter Objectives

1. Discuss the value of establishing long-term objectives.
2. Identify 16 types of business strategies.
3. Identify numerous examples of organizations pursuing different types of strategies.
4. Discuss guidelines when particular strategies are most appropriate to pursue.
5. Discuss Porter’s five generic strategies.
6. Describe strategic management in nonprofit, governmental, and small organizations.
7. Discuss joint ventures as a way to enter the Russian market.
8. Discuss the Balanced Scorecard.
9. Compare and contrast financial with strategic objectives.
10. Discuss the levels of strategies in large versus small firms.
11. Explain the First Mover Advantages concept.
12. Discuss recent trends in outsourcing.
13. Discuss strategies for competing in turbulent, high-velocity markets.
The Nature of Long-Term Objectives

Objectives should be:

- quantitative, measurable, realistic, understandable, challenging, hierarchical, obtainable, and congruent among organizational units
The Nature of Long-Term Objectives

Objectives

- provide direction
- aid in evaluation
- establish priorities
- reduce uncertainty
- minimize conflicts
- aid in both the allocation of resources and the design of jobs

The Balanced Scorecard

Balanced Scorecard

derives its name from the perceived need of firms to “balance” financial measures that are oftentimes used exclusively in strategy evaluation and control with nonfinancial measures such as product quality and customer service.

Most organizations simultaneously pursue a combination of two or more strategies, but a combination strategy can be exceptionally risky if carried too far.

No organization can afford to pursue all the strategies that might benefit the firm.

Difficult decisions must be made and priorities must be established.

Integration Strategies

- Forward integration
  - involves gaining ownership or increased control over distributors or retailers

- Backward integration
  - strategy of seeking ownership or increased control of a firm’s suppliers

- Horizontal integration
  - a strategy of seeking ownership of or increased control over a firm’s competitors
Forward Integration Guidelines

- When an organization’s present distributors are especially expensive
- When the availability of quality distributors is so limited as to offer a competitive advantage
- When an organization competes in an industry that is growing
- When present distributors or retailers have high profit margins
Backward Integration Guidelines

- When an organization’s present suppliers are especially expensive or unreliable
- When the number of suppliers is small and the number of competitors is large
- When the advantages of stable prices are particularly important
- When an organization needs to quickly acquire a needed resource Horizontal Integration Guidelines

- When an organization can gain monopolistic characteristics in a particular area or region without being challenged by the federal government
- When an organization competes in a growing industry
- When increased economies of scale provide major competitive advantages
- When competitors are faltering due to a lack of managerial expertise
Intensive Strategies

- Market penetration strategy
  - seeks to increase market share for present products or services in present markets through greater marketing efforts

- Market development
  - involves introducing present products or services into new geographic areas

- Product development strategy
  - seeks increased sales by improving or modifying present products or services
Market Penetration Guidelines

- When current markets are not saturated with a particular product or service
- When the usage rate of present customers could be increased significantly
- When the market shares of major competitors have been declining while total industry sales have been increasing
- When increased economies of scale provide major competitive advantages
Market Development Guidelines

- When new channels of distribution are available that are reliable, inexpensive, and of good quality
- When an organization is very successful at what it does
- When new untapped or unsaturated markets exist
- When an organization has excess production capacity
Product Development Guidelines

- When an organization has successful products that are in the maturity stage of the product life cycle
- When an organization competes in an industry that is characterized by rapid technological developments
- When major competitors offer better-quality products at comparable prices
- When an organization competes in a high-growth industry
Diversification Strategies

- Related diversification
  - value chains possess competitively valuable cross-business strategic fits

- Unrelated diversification
  - value chains are so dissimilar that no competitively valuable cross-business relationships exist
Synergies of Related Diversification

- Transferring competitively valuable expertise, technological know-how, or other capabilities from one business to another
- Combining the related activities of separate businesses into a single operation to achieve lower costs
- Exploiting common use of a well-known brand name
Related Diversification Guidelines

- When an organization competes in a no-growth or a slow-growth industry
- When adding new, but related, products would significantly enhance the sales of current products
- When new, but related, products could be offered at highly competitive prices
- When an organization has a strong management team
Unrelated Diversification Guidelines

❖ When revenues derived from an organization’s current products would increase significantly by adding the new, unrelated products
❖ When an organization’s present channels of distribution can be used to market the new products to current customers
❖ When an organization’s basic industry is experiencing declining annual sales and profits
Unrelated Diversification Guidelines (cont.)

- When an organization has the opportunity to purchase an unrelated business that is an attractive investment opportunity
- When existing markets for an organization’s present products are saturated
- When antitrust action could be charged against an organization that historically has concentrated on a single industry
Retrenchment

- occurs when an organization regroups through cost and asset reduction to reverse declining sales and profits
- also called a turnaround or reorganizational strategy
- designed to fortify an organization’s basic distinctive competence
Retrenchment Guidelines

- When an organization is one of the weaker competitors in a given industry
- When an organization is plagued by inefficiency, low profitability, and poor employee morale
- When an organization has grown so large so quickly that major internal reorganization is needed
Defensive Strategies

Divestiture

- Selling a division or part of an organization
- Often used to raise capital for further strategic acquisitions or investments
Divestiture Guidelines

- When an organization has pursued a retrenchment strategy and failed to accomplish needed improvements
- When a division needs more resources to be competitive than the company can provide
- When a division is responsible for an organization’s overall poor performance
- When a division is a misfit with the rest of an organization
Defensive Strategies

Liquidation

- selling all of a company’s assets, in parts, for their tangible worth
- can be an emotionally difficult strategy
Liquidation Guidelines

- When an organization has pursued both a retrenchment strategy and a divestiture strategy, and neither has been successful
- When an organization’s only alternative is bankruptcy
- When the stockholders of a firm can minimize their losses by selling the organization’s assets
Porter’s Five Generic Strategies

Porter’s Five Generic Strategies

Type 1: Cost Leadership—Low Cost
Type 2: Cost Leadership—Best Value
Type 3: Differentiation
Type 4: Focus—Low Cost
Type 5: Focus—Best Value
Cost leadership emphasizes producing standardized products at a very low per-unit cost for consumers who are price-sensitive

Michael Porter’s Five Generic Strategies

- Type 1
  - low-cost strategy that offers products or services to a wide range of customers at the lowest price available on the market

- Type 2
  - best-value strategy that offers products or services to a wide range of customers at the best price-value available on the market
Michael Porter’s Five Generic Strategies

- Differentiation

  A strategy aimed at producing products and services considered unique industry-wide and directed at consumers who are relatively price-insensitive.
Michael Porter’s Five Generic Strategies

- Type 4
  - low-cost focus strategy that offers products or services to a niche group of customers at the lowest price available on the market

- Type 5
  - best-value focus strategy that offers products or services to a small range of customers at the best price-value available on the market
Cost Leadership Strategies

❖ To employ a cost leadership strategy successfully, a firm must ensure that its total costs across its overall value chain are lower than competitors’ total costs.
Cost Leadership Strategies

Two ways:

1. Perform value chain activities more efficiently than rivals and control the factors that drive the costs of value chain activities.
2. Revamp the firm’s overall value chain to eliminate or bypass some cost-producing activities.
Cost Leadership Guidelines

- When price competition among rival sellers is especially vigorous
- When there are few ways to achieve product differentiation that have value to buyers
- When most buyers use the product in the same ways
- When buyers incur low costs in switching their purchases from one seller to another
Differentiation Strategies

⚠️ Differentiation strategy should be pursued only after a careful study of buyers’ needs and preferences to determine the feasibility of incorporating one or more differentiating features into a unique product that features the desired attributes.
Differentiation

- When there are many ways to differentiate the product
- When buyer needs and uses are diverse
- When few rival firms are following a similar differentiation approach
- When technological change is fast paced
Successful focus strategy depends on an industry segment that is of sufficient size, has good growth potential, and is not crucial to the success of other major competitors.

Most effective when consumers have distinctive preferences.
Focus Strategy Guidelines

- When the target market niche is large, profitable, and growing
- When industry leaders do not consider the niche to be crucial to their own success
- When the industry has many different niches and segments
- When few, if any, other rivals are attempting to specialize in the same target segment
Means for Achieving Strategies

- Cooperation Among Competitors
- Joint Venture/Partnering
- Merger/Acquisition
- Private-Equity Acquisitions
- First Mover Advantages
- Outsourcing
Key Reasons Why Many Mergers and Acquisitions Fail

Integration difficulties
- Inadequate evaluation of target
- Large or extraordinary debt
- Inability to achieve synergy
- Too much diversification
- Managers overly focused on acquisitions
- Too large an acquisition
- Difficult to integrate different organizational cultures
- Reduced employee morale due to layoffs and relocations
